The surrender of Major-Gen. Townsend with 10,000 men to the Turks at Kut-el-Amara is of some consequence; but there is some satisfaction that it has not been in vain. This small force was hastily raised in India and its object was to take Bagdad. Bagdad was a great prize and its fall would have meant an irreparable blow to Turkish prestige in the east. This was realized in Constantinople and large forces were dispatched to defend it. They succeeded in driving the British back to Kut-el-Amara but it meant the abandonment of the Turkish advance on the Suez Canal and the withdrawing of considerable troops from Armenia of which advantage was speedily taken by the Grand Duke Nicholas. Kut-el-Amara thus contributed substantially to the successes of the Russians and it would appear as if there was some method in the madness of sending a small force to what appeared to be sure disaster.

CHAPTER V.

There was dead silence in the room for some moments when Lady Ursula had made her decision known to her husband and brother.

Then Paul, who, to do him justice, seemed to be deeply touched by her simple devotion, put up his two hands and held hers in them.

Then he turned his face to Lord Eastling. At him he did not look with the same good humor. It was with a return to a frown that he said coldly:

"You hear, Lord Eastling? You hear what my wife says. What have you to reply to that?"

In truth, the young man appealed to scarcely knew what to say. He had expected difficulty, but not exactly in this shape. His sister was so serene, so confident, so quiet; she spoke with such an utter absence of feminine hysteria that she baffled him. After a moment's hesitation, he said:

"I should like to speak to her alone, just her and me."

It was not grammatical, it was not eloquent, but the speech was good of its kind. It left Paul without any excuse. He shrugged his shoulders.

"Lady Ursula," said he, "will, of course, do as she pleases."

She had withdrawn her hands from his shoulders, and she now looked round at her brother. For the first time, it seemed that a slight shadow of doubt fell over her. Why should Paul mind, considering her own staunchness, her having a short interview with her brother. Yet it was plain that he did mind very much.

There was a very short silence, and then she said:

"If you don't mind, Paul, I think I'd better let him tell me what he has to say. And if he wants to speak without you, it doesn't make any difference, does it? You can trust me to be fair, can't you?"

"Why is it necessary, unless he has some lies to tell about me behind my back, which he doesn't dare repeat to my face, that he should speak to you alone?" demanded Paul, quietly, indeed, but with conviction.

She turned to her brother.

"Tell me, Tom, have you anything worse to say than what you have already said?" she asked.

He took up the challenge energetically.

"Yes," he said. "I have a great deal more to say, more than I can possibly tell you unless we are quite by ourselves."

Lady Ursula was growing nervous, was being shaken out of her calmness, of not her confidence. Paul Payne suddenly changed from gentle to angry.

"Surely," he said, "this isn't fair. I am a member of your family now, Lord Eastling—"

"Perhaps," interrupted the viscount shortly.

"What do you mean by that?"

Paul left Lady Ursula, and with clenched fists held down firmly at his sides, came across the room to the young man.

Lord Eastling, though feeling that he was doing the most dreadful thing he had ever been called upon to do in his life, stood firm.

"From what I have heard of you today," he said, in a voice which he had hard work to keep steady, "I can't feel sure even that you were a bachelor when you went through the ceremony of marriage with my sister this morning."

A cry broke from his sister's lips, but Paul responded so promptly and so effectively to this insinuation that her pitiful protest was drowned in the explosion of his resentment. He made an attempt to lay violent hands upon Lord Eastling, but the young man got behind the table and said briefly:

"Bullying is no answer. Let us hear what you have to say before we appeal to our fists—and before a lady!"

Paul, whose pale face was drawn and tremulous, recovered his composure with a strong effort, and laying his right hand firmly on the table, said:

"You have no right to impute such an awful thing to me. Supposing you have heard rumors against me, you have never heard that."

Lord Eastling hung his head. There was the accent of truth, he felt, in the voice of the other as he made this protest.

"Come now," repeated Paul, leaning forward, and glaring into the young man's face, "confess now, openly, honestly, that whatever you have heard, and whoever you may have heard the calumnies from, you have never been told that I was a married man."

Lord Eastling raised his head.

"That's true," he said.

A little cry, feeble, plaintive, made him turn and look round, in time to see his sister sink upon the sofa with an ashy-white face, and a look of joy and relief shining in her blue eyes.

Paul stood up.

"I'm satisfied," he said briefly. "Tell your sister what you like, since you acknowledge that she is my wife."

He swung across the room and disappeared into the corridor, leaving Lord Eastling with no pretext for supposing that he wanted to overhear what was said about him.

Disconcerted and afraid, the viscount turned to Lady Ursula. Coming close to her, he bent down, and said gently:

"I'm awfully sorry for all this, dear. But I couldn't help myself. I've heard such things about the fellow today that I had to come."

She sat up, not angry or resentful, but calm and dignified.

"Who told you?" she said.

"The police."

She shuddered a little, and then recovered herself. There was a long pause.

"Shall I tell you what they said?" he asked in a low voice.

She shook her head.

"Why should you?" she said. "Since he says it isn't true, it is my husband I must believe."

"But if you have proof?"

She turned upon him quickly.

"Have you?"

He hesitated. It was true that he had none. He had only the word of a man whom he could trust. That, after all, was quite the same thing—in her eyes, at any rate.

"I know that I've told you the truth."

"Well, supposing what you told me is true? Supposing he did something once which might have brought upon him a heavy punishment? It is not for me to be his judge, is it?"

"He was not good enough for you."

"But that's what he told me himself," urged she with vivacity. Of course that was absurd, but I took it to mean that he had done things which I should not have looked upon as right. And since he was so outspoken, so truthful with me, I can't well reproach him after marriage, with what he accused himself of before, can I?"

Lord Eastling was silent. The position was a difficult one. Paul had, whether aware of it or not, prepared for this present eventuality. Of course, he had not been precise as to his wrong-doing, of course he had spoken of his ill-deeds vaguely, leaving an impression upon the simple woman that they were of the usual masculine sort, the result of youthful high spirits and carelessness rather than of criminal instincts.

"You are infatuated," was all he could say.

"Oh, no, don't say that," she said gently. "Don't, Tom. You wouldn't if you knew how humbly I have prayed for direction in connection with this love of mine, how I have begged for forgiveness if I have cared too much for a human being. Don't call it an infatuation. I hope it is not that. But indeed I have been so happy in finding myself cared for by a man so kind and so sweet-tempered, that I feel I deserve the pain for this interview to drive me back to the remembrance that my love is only human after all."

He threw himself on the sofa beside her, touched to the quick by the simplicity of her devotion. It was heartrending to have had to try to open her eyes; it was almost a consolation to find that so far he had completely failed.

"Forgive me, Ursula, you will forgive me, won't you?"

But she was sensible enough to know that there was nothing to forgive. Smiling into her brother's face with that madonna-like serenity which so seldom lacked in her, she said tenderly:

"I know quite well you have only spoken because you felt you ought. You have been misled, that's all. I love you for taking so much trouble and all I wish is that you had been able to speak only to me, so as to keep such horrible things from Paul's ears."

What could he do in the face of such an infatuation as this? Lord Eastling felt that he was foiled on every side.

"Hang Paul!" he said irritably.

She did not even mind this. She laughed.

"That's so like you, Tom, to get out of the difficulty you have put yourself in by wanting to hang somebody else!" she said brightly.

He tried to smile at her, but he was heavy-hearted, and the attempt was a failure.

"I wish, dear," he whispered, "that you would persuade him to come back to England with me and you at once. If he is the innocent man he says he is, why should he mind our making inquiries about him?"

"He would say, if we were to suggest it, what I say now," replied Lady Ursula, "that those inquiries, if they were to be made at all, ought to have been made before I became his wife. Now, you see, whatever you might find out would make no difference. Don't you see that, Tom?"

He looked at her shyly.

"There are some things—" he began.

She cut him short.

"There is nothing," she said solemnly, "which can separate me now from the man I have sworn to love, honor and obey."

The Making of Books

Book Publishing Trade In Great Britain is Seriously Affected

A reduction of one-third in the imports of paper and wood pulp into the United Kingdom is a harassing innovation to which the newspapers do not take too kindly. It is pointed out by the London Chronicle that while restrictions are placed upon the staple raw material of publishers, the raw material for brewers enters without question. The book publishing trade in Great Britain has been seriously affected by the restrictions on paper imports, and echoes of the discussion which the new regulations have provoked were heard at the annual meeting of the Royal Literary Fund. Authors who have already suffered by the war are badly hit by the reduction in paper imports. The annual report showed that out of fifteen thousand dollars voted in grants six thousand dollars went to authors compelled to make application owing to their distress. A paper commission has been appointed to regulate the supply of paper throughout the United Kingdom, and Sir Frederick Macmillan has been chosen to represent the peculiar demands of literature. Last year the number of books published and decreased by eight per cent. as compared with 1914, and by fifteen per cent. as compared with 1913.

The restricted supply of paper will not have been an unmixed evil if it stirs publishers to be more exacting and discriminating in the selections of authors' manuscripts.—Toronto Globe.

A Scotch minister in need of funds thus conveyed his intentions to his congregation:

"Weel, friends, the kirk is urgently in need of siller, and as we have failed to get money honestly we will have to see what a bazaar can do for us."

WOMAN HAD NERVOUS TROUBLE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her.

West Danby, N. Y.—"I have had nervous trouble all my life until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nerves and for female troubles and it straightened me out in good shape. I work nearly all the time, as we live on a farm and I have four girls. I do all my sewing and other work with their help, so it shows that I stand it real well. I took the Compound when my ten year old daughter came and it helped me a lot. I have also had my oldest girl take it and it did her lots of good. I keep it in the house all the time and recommend it."—Mrs. DEWITT SINCEBAUGH, West Danby, N. Y.

Sleeplessness, nervousness, irritability, backache, headaches, dragging sensations, all point to female derangements which may be overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The recent criticism in the press of the Anglo-Japanese alliance induced Premier Count Okuma to give an interview in which he condemned what he characterized as petty efforts to create an agitation against Great Britain. The premier declared unequivocally that there would be no wavering in Japan's fidelity to the alliance.

Naming The Farm

The Farm Name Should be Appropriate and Suggestive

You have a large dairy farm putting out high grade dairy butter. Your butter is all that you claim for it. It comes from the Meadow Brook Dairy Farm. The thrifty housewife phones her grocery order to the dealer who handles your butter. If she knows your product she says, "I want a pound of butter, not just butter, but Meadow Brook Dairy Farm butter."

The farm name should be appropriate, it should be suggestive. Sunny Brook Stock Farm should be near a sparkling little brooklet, not on a bald hill slope. Maple Grove Stock Farm should have a maple grove, and Pine Ridge Poultry Farm should be on a pine ridge. The name chosen should be characteristic of the farm for which it is intended. It should be plainly and neatly painted on a substantial signboard placed at the entrance drive to the farm home. Along with it should go the names of the products or product of which the farm makes a specialty, as "Pine Ridge Berry Farm—A Specialty of Strawberry Plants and Raspberry Bushes—R. P. Jaxon and Sons." This should appear, as well, on all letter-heads and envelopes used in connection with the business correspondence of the farm. In these days of highly developed advertising and specialization the farm without a name is minus the link which brings its products before the people economically and properly. —F.J.K., in Successful Farming.

Note and Comment

Why not Monitor?

There has been a great deal of discussion lately and some pointed remarks as to why there is not a member of the R.N.W.M.P. stationed at Monitor. The leading citizens are all in agreement as to the great need of a Constable in this town, and are thinking seriously of appointing one in the near future.

How much better would it not be if the authorities could see their way clear to have a member of the mounted stationed here permanently. We may cite a few instances in favor of the plan.

As things are at present, if there is any necessity for an arrest for any cause whatsoever, and the past few weeks there has been considerable infractions of the law in this district word has to be sent to Coronation to the constable there which means a delay of a day or more before the officer can get to the scene of operations, causing unthinking people to cast reflections on the force.

How much better it would be from the standpoint of efficiency if the officer was stationed in the centre, or as near the centre as possible of his district. He would then be in a position to reach a given point in far less time than he can at present, being practically at one end of his district.

We already have a Justice of Peace, one of the best of lawyers and have a site bought for a jail, which is nearing completion, and only require the right capable person we have in mind to keep it occupied.

Considering that this is a divisional point since the change in the C.P.R. schedule, we are only right in assuming that this town has a future ahead of it.

So why not prepare in time to meet the demands a town of any importance has to assume?

How do the German warships get out? How do they get back in again? You hear these questions every time a German warship is reported in the North Sea. The people who ask them appear to think that the North Sea is about the size of Sounding Lake. Get a map and see how large the North Sea really is.

Ireland is figuring in the papers again. The attempt to land arms in Ireland and the disturbances in Dublin do not represent the feelings of the Irish people as a whole, but is the work of a few malcontents. Sir Edward Carson and John Redmond have made that clear in their utterances on the matter and have informed the allies that the movement is sectional only and has no sympathy from the representative Irish leaders

It seems a pity that a man like Sir Roger Casement who in the past has done so much good work for humanity, it was he who brought to light and investigated the rubber atrocities in South America, and was knighted for the work he did in connection therewith, should lend his hand to treason against his country. We can only think that he is not responsible for his actions.

At the time the President delivered his last message to Congress, senators and congressmen were deluged with telegrams and letters charging the President with seeking war with Germany. These letters and telegrams purported to come from the constituents of the senators and congressmen. Now it has been made clear that they are the work of a Geman organization, which has its headquarters in Chicago, and whose object it is to poison the minds of the American people by leading them to believe that the majority of the people wish to give in to Germany and let them do as they wish.

It may be asked if there is any neutral country that is pro-German in its sympathies.

Leaving out the United States and taking the neutral countries in immediate touch with the Central Empires, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland and Romania, there are only two, Sweden and Switzerland, in which pro-German sentiments are believed to be predominant. In Switzerland the sympathy is racial, the German cantons are pro-German, while the French and Italian cantons are strongly pro-Ally.

In Sweden, owing partly to traditional hostility to Russia, there is a strong pro-German party which is in control of the Government, but may not represent the majority of the people. In all the neutral countries of Europe, except Denmark and Norway, the influence of the Court and of the higher commands of the army are friendly to Germany for reasons that are obvious. Germany stands for the authority of a caste; and its cause therefore appeals to all those highly placed mortals who find it irksome to be obliged to defer, in some measure, to the wishes of the people. In at least one country, Greece, this affection for German absolutism may cost the king his crown. The duel between Venizelos and Constantine is about to be renewed, with every indication that popular opinion is with the statesman and against the sovereign.

E.N.S.

A would-be humorist, meeting an Irishman, thought he would be funny at his expense. "Hello, Mike!" he said. "I'll give you eight pence for a shilling."

"Will ye now?" asked Mike.

"Yes," said the humorist. The Irishman handed over the shilling, and his friend put eightpence into his palm in return. "Eight in pence," he explained. "Not bad, is it?"

"No," answered Mike, "but the shilling-is!"

RUB ON NERVILINE

There may be a thousand pains; yet, excepting sciatica, neuralgia is the worst. Most remedies are not strong enough or penetrating enough to relieve neuralgia. You know everything you have tried has failed to give you even momentary relief, and you have decided that neuralgia must be borne forever.

Do not make this mistake—try NERVILINE.

Apply it to the sore spot. Notice the glow that spreads deeper and wider as Nerviline's curative power is carried further and further into the tissue. How quickly the pain is soothed! How rapidly it lessens! In a little while you have forgotten the pain—it has actually gone.

SPRING BLOOD IS WATERY BLOOD

How to Get New Health and New Strength at This Season

Spring ailments are not imaginary. Even the most robust find the winter months most trying to their health. Confinement indoors, often in over-heated and nearly always badly ventilated rooms—in the home, the office, the shop and the school—taxes the vitality of even the strongest. The blood becomes thin and watery and is clogged with impurities. Some people have headaches and a feeling of languor. Others are low-spirited and nervous. Still others are troubled with disfiguring pimples and skin eruptions; while some get up in the morning feeling just as tired as when they went to bed. These are all spring symptoms that the blood is out of order and that a medicine is needed. Many people take purgative medicines in the spring. This is a serious mistake. You cannot cure yourself with a medicine that gallops through your system and leaves you weaker still. This is all that a purgative does. What you need to give you health and strength in the spring is a tonic medicine that will enrich the blood and soothe the jangled nerves. And the one always reliable tonic and blood purifier is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills not only banish spring weakness but guard you against the more serious ailments that follow, such as anaemia, nervous debility, indigestion, rheumatism and other diseases due to bad blood. In proof of this Mrs. D. E. Hughes, Hazenmore, Sask., says: "About a year ago I was badly run down, my nerves were all unstrung, and I could not go upstairs without stopping to rest. As I was a long way from a doctor I determined to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and in the course of a few weeks I felt like a new person. As an all round restorative I can heartily recommend this medicine."

If you are ailing this spring you can not afford, in your own interest, to overlook so valuable a medicine as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Extend Scope of Act

Industrial Dispute Measure to Cover War Munitions Work

The announcement that an order-in-council has been passed extending the scope of the industrial disputes investigation act, hitherto embracing only public utilities to include all branches of the war munitions business is of exceptional interest in labor and manufacturing circles in view of the allegiance that certain shell plants and other firms engaged on war work were not paying fair wages and the efforts of the trades and labor congress of Canada to have a fair wage clause inserted in all British contracts for munitions. When 10 or more persons are employed they can now demand a board of conciliation to investigate wages or conditions of employment and the company must agree to reference of the disputes to arbitration by a tribunal of three, one appointee representing the workers, another the company and the third named by the department of labor.

The amendment to the act brings within its scope all firms in Canada engaged in the production of war supplies. In lieu of the fair wage clause which the trades and labor congress officials unsuccessfully sought to have inserted in munitions contracts, boards of conciliation will now be compulsory where the workers demand them to adjust their grievances, and pending such investigations there can be no strikes, nor can any munitions firm lock out its employees.

A Cure for Rheumatism.—A painful and persistent form of rheumatism is caused by impurities in the blood, the result of defective action of the liver and kidneys. The blood becomes tainted by the introduction of uric acid, which causes much pain in the tissues and in the joints. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are known to have effected many remarkable cures, and their use is strongly recommended. A trial of them will convince anyone of their value.

Since the beginning of the war the National Land Council of England has been training and placing women on the land for stock breeding, fruit and market gardening, and other branches of agricultural work. Upwards of 400 women have been training, and over 2,000 have been placed for ordinary farm work and market gardening. They are now organizing individuals and large and small groups for the spring and summer work.

Mourning is absolutely prohibited in Germany; no wounded or crippled soldier is allowed to walk in the streets of the capital and of important towns. They can only show themselves when they are able to wear their uniforms in quite a military way and with all decency.

Approximately 234,472 citizens of military age in the United States now outside the army have had military training.

They Shot Him

A Predatory Hawk Is Used to Point a Moral Lesson

Cora Francis Stoddart, the presiding genius of the Scientific Temperance Federation of Boston, had occasion to get up some ammunition for a local option fight in Hudson, Mass. One of the features was a stuffed hawk that had annoyed some farmers by killing their hens. The angry farmers shot the hawk and stuffed it. Miss Stoddart put the hawk on exhibition in Hudson with the legend: "This hawk killed forty hens. Did the farmers license him? They shot him."

The farmers did not say, "That what's the use, let 'em go on killing the hens so we can get the feathers."

They did not say, "If we kill this hawk some other hawk will come and why discriminate between hawks? If we could kill all the hawks at once it would be different."

The farmers did not say, "Taht hawk has got a lot of money invested is clawa and we don't want to destroy all his property."

The farmers did not say, "I am against interfering with a hawk's personal liberty. Hasn't he a right to make his living just as he sees fit? Why should we interfere with a hawk's private business and dictate to him as to what he shall eat and drink."

The farmers did not try to work off any of this sort of rot. They destroyed the hawk that was destroying their chickens. Just so it is proposed to destroy the institution known as the saloon which is grinding up the sons and daughters of men in order to make money out of their downfall.—H. Arnott, M.B., M.C.P.S.

Warts on the hands is a disfigurement that troubles many ladies. Holloway's Corn Cure will remove the blemishes without pain.

How Portgual Can Help

Portugal's entry into the war will be of some value to the allies. By a treaty going back to the early years of the last century, Portugal is an ally of Great Britain, is bound in the event of war to take a certain share in the hostilities if called upon.

Hitherto Portugal has contented herself with rendering some assistance in Africa, but presumably Germany's declaration of war upon her will incline her to more active efforts. Whether she will despatch an expeditionary army abroad remains to be seen. At most she could spare only 75,000 men, while her naval forces are negligible. It is more likely, therefore, that she will place her ports and colonial possessions at the allies' disposal and turn over to them many of the German ships whose seizure has been the direct cause of the outbreak of hostilities.

"Oh, don't mind that," said the sportsman genially. "It's a mighty poor sermon that don't hit me some where."

Wonderful Bilious Remedy Actually Prevents Attacks

There are two great causes of biliousness—they are constipation and defective liver action.

When Dr. Hamilton's Pills are taken, they not only correct constipated bowels, but act upon the liver as well.

Quite unlike ordinary medicines which purge and give temporary relief, Dr. Hamilton's Pills remove the conditions which cause biliousness, and thus permanent cures are affected. No person who occasionally uses Dr. Hamilton's Pills will ever suffer from the headache, bad stomach or bilious complaint. Get a 25c box today.

The truth is that when all the facts are investigated, native Canadians have responded to the call of Canada and the empire with signal readiness and wonderful self-sacrifice. Proportionately they have done as well as other classes, and they have made actual sacrifices out of proportion to any other element in Canada.

Nervous & Sleepless

Take 2 Tablets at Bedtime and you will arise feeling Refreshed, Bright & Vigorous.

When you feel gloomy and depressed and cannot sleep, suspect your nerves. When you shrink from company and would rather be alone you are losing confidence in yourself, and that can only mean weak nerves. It is not natural to be solitary and unsociable, it shows clearly that vitality has become reduced, and the nervous system correspondingly weakened. But take Dr. Cassell's Tablets for such a condition and you will be astonished at the results, astonished at the bright new health you will gain, at the splendid vigour and vitality they will give you.

Mr. Poole a business man of 60, Infirmary Road, Sheffield, England, says:—"I had lost all confidence in myself, and was actually afraid to meet people. The alertness and activity I had formerly possessed were gone. My digestion was feeble, and sleeplessness was terrible. But when I commenced taking Dr. Cassell's Tablets I soon felt better. Now I am as well and fit as any man of my age."

Dr. Cassell's Tablets are Nutritive, Restorative, Alterative, and Anti-Spasmodic, and of great Therapeutic value in all derangements of the Nerve and Functional Systems in old or young. HANDY HUSBAND

Knew How to Get Part of the Breakfast

"I know one dish I can prepare for breakfast as well as any cook on earth,' said my husband one morning when the cook was ill and he had volunteered to help get breakfast. He appeared with his dish and I discovered it was Grape-Nuts which, of course, was easy to prepare for it was perfectly cooked at the factory, but it was a good illustration of the convenience of having Grape-Nuts about.

"We took up Grape-Nuts immediately after returning from a five years' sojourn in a hot country. Our stomachs were in bad condition and we were in poor health generally.

"In a day or two we liked Grape-Nuts better than any other kind of food on the table. We both gained steadily in health and strength, and this was caused by Grape-Nuts and Postum.

"A friend of ours had a similar experience. She was seriously ill with indigestion and could find nothing to eat that would not give her heartburn and palpitation, especially at night.

"She found that a small dish of Grape-Nuts with cream made her a satisfactory supper and gave her a comfortable night's rest. In a short time she gained several pounds in weight."

Alberta Lady Tells of Quick and Complete Cure Through Using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ferguson Flats, Alberta.—(Special).—"Yes, I am very glad I can say that I have tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and found them all that is claimed for them." So says Miss Dollie McClain, an estimable lady residing here.

"I was troubled with a sore back that made me almost helpless. I took one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and my back is all right. I can do my work and the pain is all gone.'

Thousands of women in Canada are suffering daily tortures from pain in the back. Thousands of others like Miss McClain are doing their work without an effort because they took the advice of others and cured their backache by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Every woman should use Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are the finest tonic in the world because, acting directly on the kidneys, they tone up those organs to do their full work of straining all the impurities out of the blood. Pure blood means new strength for all parts of the body. New strength means new cheerfulness. That is why so many women so cheerfully testify to the benefit received from using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

KEEP CHILDREN WELL

To keep little ones well, the bowels must be kept regular and the stomach sweet. Nine-tenths of childhood ailments are caused by derangements of these organs. Baby's Own Tablets never fail to regulate the stomach and bowels—that is why thousands of mothers would give no other medicine to their little ones. Concerning them Mrs. (Chas. A. Turner, Marie Joseph, N.S., writes: "We have been using Baby's Own Tablets off and on for the past year and a half and have found nothing to equal them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Tragic Folly

It will not be long before the fly season is again with us, accompanied by supplications from the general press to "swat the fly." Simultaneously, the deadly poison fly paper makes its appearance, with the possible risk of fatal poisoning wherever there are children.

For during 1915 twenty-six cases of fly poisoning were reported from eleven states. In 1914 forty-six children were innocent victims.

This record is in all probability incomplete as symptoms of arsenical poisoning are so similar to those of cholera infantum that even physicians of long experience are likely to confuse them, and the subsequent illness is ascribed to cholera infantum.

The Michigan U.S.A. legislature has already passed a law regulating the sale of poisonous fly papers. The question should be considered by every civic body of Canada and the States to stop infantum mortality from an absolutely unnecessary cause

What Else Matters?

We are fighting against a nation which by countless deeds of horror have proved themselves outlaws from humanity, who have trampled upon international law and the rights of the weak, who are striving to destroy all the higher ideals of Christian civilization and of human liberty and to substitute for them the brutalizing and materialize principles of so-called German "Kultur." What does anything else matter compared with our winning the victory against such an enemy, and should not the purpose to achieve it be the dominating interest of our present lives, shaping all our thoughts, and determining all our acts?—The Times of India.

THERE IS HEALTH IN RICH RED BLOOD

ANAEMIA

Disease germs take advantage of every weakness of the human system. Their greatest enemy is rich, red blood, but when the blood gets thin and watery they increase rapidly and easily gain the upper hand. In this way grip, pneumonia, consumption and other germ diseases get a foothold on the system almost before you know it.

Anaemia or poverty of the blood makes itself known by pallor of the gums, lips and inside of the eyelids, you feel weak and languid, the heart's action weakens, you are easily tired out and find yourself short of breath.

The blood is thin and watery, and is lacking in the red corpuscles which represent the nutritious element of the blood. Because Dr. Chase's Nerve Food increases the number of red corpuscles and thereby enriches the blood, it is the most effective means available of curing anaemia and fortifying the system against the attack of disease.

On account of the weakened condition of the blood from anaemia, there is always danger of developing Dropsy or Pernicious Anaemia, from which there is small chance of recovery.

With the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to build up the richness of the blood, the color is soon restored to the pallid skin, and you find yourself gaining in health and strength. The heart's action is strengthened and gradually the muscular weakness is replaced by new vigor and energy.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is truly doing wonders for many thousands of anaemic men and women and puny boys and girls, whose blood has got thin and weak. Put it to the test and you will better understand why so many people are enthusiastic in its praise.

THE IMPORTANCE OF THE AERIAL FLEET IN CONDUCT OF THE WAR

SOME NOTABLE EXPLOITS OF FIGHTING AIRMEN

It is Stated That There are Now More Than Ten Thousand Airmen Engaged in the War, and More Men Being Added To the Service as Fast as They Can be Trained

According to E. LaRue Jones, editor of Aeronautics, New York, there are more than 10,000 airmen engaged in the war. The numbers are being added to daily as fast as men can be trained and new machines designed. In the earlier days of the war the chief services of the aeroplanes were as scouts. They took the places formerly held by cavalry. They gave news of the enemies' movements, spotted his guns and batteries and directed the fire of their own artillery. As time went on, and as the skill of the aviators and of the designers of aeroplanes increased, they undertook offensive warfare. Aeroplanes now travel for hundreds of miles to the enemy's territory and drop tons of bombs, feats that would have been pronounced impossible two years ago. In fact, the aeroplane has surpassed expectations as greatly as the dirigibles, notably the Zeppelins, have fallen below them.

As the war has advanced it has proved that the best type of aeroplane for war service is the biplane. Since the Germans, with all their wonderful preparations, had pinned their faith upon the Taubes, which are monoplanes, they were found at a considerable disadvantage in every respect save numbers when the war began. The Taubes were all right for scouting purposes, but they lacked the stability and carrying power of the biplanes. The French, too, had many monoplanes in the service, but these were gradually discarded, and as months past now all the belligerents have been concentrating their efforts upon improving and strengthening the type of machine invented by the Wright brothers. The new German Fokker machine is of this type. The French army is now supplied with a fighting aeroplane driven by a 200 horsepower motor. It has a speed of 85 miles an hour, carries a crew of four men, and is armed with a six-inch gun that throws an explosive shell.

There are several types of aeroplanes of more than 100 horsepower, and one of them give a speed of nearly a mile and a half a minute, and carry enough petrol for an 18-hour journey. There is another machine that will carry a dead weight of three tons at a speed of a mile a minute. The weight-carrying capacity of these machines is likely to be thrown into the shade when the gigantic aeroplanes now under construction for the Russian government are completed. The Fokker machines, while a vast improvement on the aeroplanes hitherto depended on by Germany, have not shown any improvement upon the best used by the Allies. Several of them have been shot down by French and British aviators. Guynemer, the famous French aviator, who was wounded a few days ago, has already shot to pieces a couple of the Fokkers.

Without disparaging the feats of skill and daring done by the German aviators, men like Boelke, Baron von Althaus and Lieut. Immelmann, it may fairly be claimed that the British and French aviators are their superiors. The greatest achievement of an aviator in this war stands to the credit of a British fight officer, Lieut. Warneford, who single-handed, attacked and destroyed a Zeppelin. It was as though a humming-bird destroyed an eagle. To the deep regret of the British empire, Lieut. Warneford was accidentally killed a couple of days later when testing a new machine. Roland Garros, the famous French aviator, now a German prisoner, is one of the most daring and skilful aviators whom the war has developed, though indeed he was a famous flyer in days of peace. He had destroyed several aeroplanes before being forced to descend in enemy territory and surrender.

One of his exploits, which showed not only the daring of Garros, but his humanity, occurred some months ago. A new German machine, an Aviatik, was sighted approaching the French lines at terrific speed. Half a dozen flyers with their pilots dashed for their machines, but before one of them was seated they heard a whirring noise overhead, and saw Garros, first, as usual, and alone, rising for the contest. Garros flew low, keeping in the shadows. The Aviatik passed him and apparently did not notice the Frenchman. Then he suddenly rose in the rear of the German and began to circle and climb. Before he could get high enough he was spotted, and the German craft wheeled and dropped bombs, which missed Garros, who mounted higher. Then came the rattle of machine guns, and the observers could see white patches in the wings of Garros' machine where the bullets had struck. Garros did not fire. He continued to wheel round and round in a narrowing circle. The Aviatik could not pilot quickly enough to keep the range, and it, too, began to circle. At 400 yards Garros opened fire with his mitrailleuse. First the German gunner collapsed, then his pilot. The Aviatik burst into flames and dived 1,800 feet. The New York Times says "Garros circled gently to the ground and alighted 20 yards from the burning mass. As he approached it he uncovered and saluted. He stood there silent, perhaps sorrowful. As the other airmen rushed forward to the marsh yelling like Dervishes, Garros walked away. They saw tears running down his cheeks."

Paint About the Farm

An Investment That Will Bring Returns in a Number of Ways

Both buildings and implements require the expenditure of a great deal of money and for this reason, if for no other, it behooves the owner to add to their life of usefulness by giving them a coat of paint whenever necessary. If there is any doubt as to whether the building or implements are in need of paint it will always pay to give them the benefit of the doubt and paint them.

Some people regard paint only as a means of beautifying or adding to the attractiveness of that upon which it is applied but an even more important thing is that it preserves at the same time. An implement that has become so old and dry that it becomes loose can be made useful for a much longer time if given a coat of good paint which fills all cracks thus preventing water from getting in and hastening decay. A small amount of time and money spent in keeping tools and buildings properly painted will be an investment that will bring returns in a number of ways.

In these days when reliable ready mixed paint of any desired color or shade can be had at such reasonable cost it will not pay anyone to try to mix his own paint. In a factory where paint is made it is not only possible to make careful tests to determine just what ingredients, and in what proportions, should be used in order to produce the best product, but it is possible to mix the paint a great deal more thoroughly than could be done in case the ingredients were mixed by hand. A great deal of mixing is required in order to get good paint and it never pays to use anything but a good, reliable brand and a good quality.

Whatever is to be painted should be perfectly dry, free from dirt, dust and grease. For the first, or prime, coat on either new or weather-beaten buildings it will be all right to use two parts of oil to one part of pure white lead. This coat being a pore filler the more oil the wood absorbs the better, for the good effects of the paint will be more lasting. This coat should be allowed to dry for at least a week or ten days before another is applied.

For a nicely finished and more durable job it will be necessary to apply three coats although two coats of good paint will give a more effect and will often answer the purpose very well. For the second coat we add about a fourth of a gallon of oil and an eighth of a gallon of turpentine to each gallon of prepared paint. If the prepared paint is purchased in gallon cans it is a good plan to empty all of them into a large vessel and thoroughly mix all together. If the tints in the different cans are not just exactly the same, as is sometimes the case, this paint will give a good effect and will tire lot. The third coat should be applied without the addition of any oil or turpentine, and if it is the intention to use only two coats the second should be applied with paint just as it comes from the can.

In applying the paint see that the surface is dry for no matter how good the paint is or how well it is applied if the surface is moist the job cannot be a good one and time and money will be wasted. When a moist surface is covered with paint the heat of the sun will in time dry up the moisture which will cause the paint to blister and then it will scale off. When painting see that each coat is nicely and evenly applied and always finish a board out completely to the end. Never lap fresh paint upon dried or partly dried paint for such laps will always show plainly in the finished job.

Why He Smiled Not

At a dance, not so many days ago, there was a man who met with a mishap on the floor, due to his lack of skill in dancing.

A little later the man sought out one of the guests and said:

"Sir, you are the only gentleman in the room."

"Thanks!" replied the other, dryly. "May I inquire what motive has led you to seek me out for this complimentary outburst?"

"Why," exclaimed the man, "when I tripped in the tango just now and fell sprawling to the floor, incidentally ripping off a large section of my charming partner's gown, you were the only one in the place who had the decency not to laugh."

The other smiled grimly.

"The explanation lies in the fact that the lady is my wife and that I have paid for the gown."

Farmer's Wife—What do you think of our eggs?

Paying Guest—Too small for their age!

Farming Special Will Tour Saskatchewan

Arrangements Made for Operation of Farming Train

Arrangements have been made for the summer schedule of the better farming special, conducted under the auspices of the Saskatchewan government, the C.N.R. and the Agricultural College at Saskatoon. The special visited many rural localities in Saskatchewan last season, and was greatly appreciated by the farmers.

The operations of the train will be largely confined to the northwestern section of the province of Saskatchewan, and it will operate for the five weeks commencing June 12. The better farming special will cover the main line of the C.N.R. from Humboldt to Lloydminster up to Jackfish branch, from Battleford to Turtleford; the Blaine Lake line from Battleford to Prince Albert; from Prince Albert east to Tisdale; and will also visit points south of Melfort and Carnwood and Dobden, on the Big River branch, north of Prince Albert. The last two weeks will be spent in the Goose Lake territory.

Last summer in the Goose Lake district the better farming special visited every other station. This year all alternate points will be included in the program. The train is being operated under the joint auspices of the department of agriculture, the agricultural college and the C.N.R. The college and the department provide the exhibits, lecturers and the college the livestock.

The equipment which the C.N.R. will provide free of charge will consist of four cars for livestock, one car for the boys' and girls' exhibits, one poultry car, one crop production car, one mechanical exhibits and building car; one domestic science car; one nursery car and a lantern lecture car, making eleven cars in all, in addition to a Pullman and dining car for the staff and a caboose for the crew.

Hon. Mr. Motherwell, minister of agriculture, expects to be with the special throughout, and Dean Rutherford of the College of Agriculture will be with the train a part of the time. Professor Breckeen will have charge of the crop production exhibits. Professor Shaw will be in charge of the animal husbandry department; Professor Greig, the mechanical exhibits; Professor Bates, the boys' and girls' department; Mrs. Jean Archibald, the domestic science department.

The livestock exhibits will be of particular interest, as the district through which the special operates is essentially a stock-raising country. The district also contains a considerable number of creameries, and one of the questions to be considered will be the improvement of dairy herds and the production of forage crops which will prove of great interest. Hon. Mr. Motherwell will deal with this question.

Submarine Chaser

It is reported that a combination submarine chaser and scout boat with a speed of forty-one miles an hour has been contracted for by the United States government. It is said that the boat's length of 50 feet will permit it to be taken on board battleships.

The vessel will carry a number of one-pounder quick-firers, and will have one 14-in. torpedo tube. Double rudders will enable it to make quick turns and take zigzag courses that will make it a difficult target. Its draught will be about two feet and a half. The pilot house will be armoured.

"The Riff-Raff of Humanity"

German Paper Refers to Canadians and Australians as Human Refuse

The indescribe joy which the fall of the fortress of Erzerum was welcomed in the English press has no doubt evaporated sufficiently for the Britons to see clearly that their cause in the Near East is in a very shaky condition. Because, of what elements do the forces they have available in Mesopotamia and in the adjacent regions consist? Of Australians and Canadians mainly, the very riff-raff of humanity, descendants of murderers and thieves, drunken hordes who despise the very thought of discipline and decency. This applies particularly to the Australians, the worthy prosterity of men who for their crimes were once deported from their own country to found a colony at the extreme ends of the earth. These are the white allies of the black culture bearers who have set notoriously civilized England against us; these constitute the unspeakable human refuse against whom our heroic sons and brothers are doomed to fight. And yet there are sentimentalists who would urge us to be dainty in the choice of our weapons when facing such bestial creatures as these!—Berlin Vossische Zeitung.

Victims of a Submarine

The Thrilling Experiences of a British Crew in Eastern Seas

A stirring story of the experience of the crew of a British steamer which was sunk by a submarine in the Eastern seas on January 4 is told by Captain Arnold C. B. Groom, late of the steamer Coquet.

Captain Groom described the attempt of the two boats in which the crew left the ship to get into the track of steamers between Port Said, Alexandria and Malta.

The next day Capt. Groom lost sight of the second boat, which was not seen again.

On the 16th Captain Groom landed at a small bay with houses in the background. These afterward were found to be uninhabited cove dwellings. The boat's crew slept that night on the sands, and on the morning of the 17th the captain and three men went to try to find some human being who could tell them which way to head for the nearest civilized place. They met an Arab, who returned with them to the camp, where there was a Greek fireman who spoke Arabic.

After a night in the cave dwellings the rest of the party, fifteen in number, next morning were attacked by Arabs with rifles. Capt. Groom himself was wounded, and lost consciousness.

Soon afterward a small Italian steamer with the commander of Fort Marsa Susa aboard entered the bay. A sailor named Lord was found lying on the sand wounded. He said the other members of the crew had been carried off by Bedouins. The commander of Fort Marsa Susa then took Capt. Groom and the sailor aboard the little steamer, and they eventually reached England.

It is presumed that some of the British sailors rescued from thirsten on the Egyptian border included members of the Coquet's crew.

Capt. Groom, speaking of the sinking of his steamer, said:

"While all this was happening the commander of the submarine asked me many questions. The two lifeboats were near the submarine all now, and bailing was in full progress in each boat with two or three buckets. I pointed this out to the commander of the submarine and the fact that both of the bilge planks of the boat I had rowed lately been sprung alongside his awash deck. I told him it was nothing short of murder to send thirty men away like that in the middle of winter, too, so far from land. He laughed and said he would save the next ship and send her to look for us."

After relating the kind treatment extended to him by the Italians, Captain Groom said: "The submarine had no mark or number on her, but I concluded she was Austrian, as the officers on her had the Austrian crown on the badges of their caps."

An act of sublime courage, surely one of the most extraordinary in the world's history, won a recent Victoria Cross for a dead Englishman. The official award of the Cross is this: "For most conspicuous bravery. He was in the act of throwing a grenade when it slipped from his hand and fell to the bottom of the trench, close to a service of our officers and men. He immediately shouted out a warning, and himself jumped clear and into safety; but, seeing that the officers and men were unable to get into cover, and knowing well that the grenade was due to explode, he returned without any hesitation and flung himself down on it. He was instantly killed by the explosion. His magnificent act of self-sacrifice undoubtedly saved many lives." This was Second Lieutenant Alfred Victor Smith, Fifth Battalion, East Lancashire Regiment, Territorial Force. Can a country which breeds such men be conquered?—Ottawa Journal.

A London man just back from the States says that a little girl on the train to Pittsburg was chewing gum. Not only that, but she insisted on pulling it out in long strings and letting it fall back into her mouth again.

"Mabel!" said her mother, in a horrified whisper. "Mabel, don't do that. Chew your gum like a little lady."—London Opinion.

Daring French Aviator

Captured Foe Plane With a Grappling Hook

Lieut. Le Bourhis, the first French military aviator to use a parachute, is dead of wounds received in an aerial encounter in the vicinity of Verdun. The lieutenant, who was a private at the outbreak of the war, won a commission and the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

His best known exploit was the capture of a large German aeroplane with a grappling hook in August of last year. He thus described this incident in a letter to a friend:

"I had been flying for hours dragging a grappling hook at the end of a long cable behind my machine. Suddenly a very large black aeroplane with white crosses appeared. I sent my machine whirling over him. A hook got him, and he swung at the end of my line like a toy.

"All went well for a few minutes. Then my motor began to fail. My machine rolled from one wing to the other, and then, at 14,000 feet, the engine stopped altogether.

"I caught glimpses of deep trenches and a white river beneath me. I struggled furiously, with the German machine still balanced at the end of the rope. I began to fall more rapidly. A wing broke. Everything turned black. I was falling like a stone."

When the lieutenant regained consciousness he was safely on land, not badly injured. He was unable to explain the manner of his escape from death, although he attributed it to the probability that the cable attached to the German aeroplane tightened as he was falling and eased the force of the descent.

"How is your boy Josh getting along with his employer?"

"Well," replied Farmer Corntossel, "they have come to an agreement at last. Josh said he was goin' to quit, an' the boss, he said so, too."

"Was your garden a success last year?"

"Very much so. My neighbor's chickens took first prize at the poultry show."

No doubt the C. P. Perhaps they wish to keep their men busy at Coronation and rehandle all the goods for the stations between there and Monitor. No doubt a petition will be sent in to the proper authorities and this poor business arrangement remedied.
